

BPL has been shown to cause disruptive interference throughout the HF range. Widespread adoption of BPL could mean the end of amateur radio as we've known it, and the crippling of many military, public service, and commercial operations.